

Life Is a Symphony

Meet Stewart Schuele... French horn and inquiring mind

When something intrigues Stewart, he investigates it thoroughly! After Juilliard, he sleuthed for a music publisher as a forensic musicologist (plagiarism detective). Other areas of expertise include transportation history, hawks/falcons, and photography.

Stewart grew up in S. Burlington (he earned his first dollar playing in the Burlington Concert Band) but now lives on Martha's Vineyard (with wife and three kids), where he manages a supermarket deli.

Last book read: Jan Swafford's Was Brahms a Wiseass?

Thing he's most proud of: music he composed

Secret ambitions: to speak Russian well; to fly high performance aircraft; to build a model railroad based on Vermont railroading

Unfortunately (this is Stewart's pet peeve), the day only has 24 hours. No doubt he'll be looking into this very closely.
